BUSINESS COLLEGE NOTES

Three Farmington students, Anna Brockmiller, Frankie Hamilton and Roy A. Miller, have recently won certificates of proficiency from the American Penman of New York City. As the Penman is considered the leading penmanship magazine of America, and business men everywhere recognize this certificate as a credential of ability, these business college students are to be congratulated. Five of Prof. Miller's students have won these certificates since January 1st, and there are almost a dozen more who, with a little more practice, will be able to secure this award. Prof. Miller stands high in the list of teachers whose students were honored with these certificates last year, but he tells us that the prospects here are better than last year. The students are becoming very enthusiastic regarding their work and this recognition by such high authority is quite gratifying.
